HITLER "DECLARES WAR" ON NORWAY; CHARGES ALLIES PLANNED INVASION

NORWAY FRONT, BRITISH CLAIM, IS 'STABILIZED'

Public Warned To Expect Setbacks Until Full Forces Arrive

CAMPAIGN SEEN 'LONG AND TOUGH'

Observers Believe Allied Sea Power Will Decide, Ultimately

(By Associated Press) LONDON, April 27.—The situation on the Tondhem front in Norway was described as "stabilized" today by a British military source who added that British patrols had taken prisoners.

Describing action south of Dombas, mentioned in last night's war office communique, this source declared that the German's were "beaten back with heavy loss."

Later the Nazis returned to attack and the British, under heavy mortar and machine-gun fire—evidently from strafing German aircraft—retreated and "took less exposed positions," according to this British source.

Action Near Kvan

This action took place near Kvan, southeast of Oslo near the Dombas railroad, it was said, and Allied troops were reported to be in considerable strength southeast of Dombas.

This source declared that Norwegian troops were at Voss in the Bergen area fighting off twin German attacks. One attack was said to be by infantry advancing along the railroad from Bergen, the second by German troops landed in Hardanger fjord.

(A German communique declared Voss had been captured from Norwegian forces.)

The British said also "for what it is worth" that Norwegian troops are in the region of Nes on the railroad 100 miles east of Bergen.

The Germans were reported advancing toward them along the railroad running from Tyri Fjord.

Dog "Sees" For Canton Woman

DOG "SEES" FOR CANTON WOMAN

Her Constant Companion; Likes Flattery and Ice Cream Cones

A trained German shepherd dog brightens life for a blind Canton woman who has visited frequently in Salem.

Miss Louise Adams of Canton, 82, of 982 Liberty st., and Mrs. Mayme Cook, 982 of Vine ave., loves her dog, which she calls "Scyros," as no one else could. Miss Adams owns the only "seeing eye" dog in Canton.

He is a six-year old purebred German shepherd who has done Miss Adams "seeing" for four and a half years. He gets his name from a god in Greek mythology.

No Accidents Yet "Scyros" wears a harness with a special "handle" which Miss Adams holds. In this manner he leads his mistress about town. Not once have they had an accident.

"I can tell every move he makes," Miss Adams says. "I can even tell when he sees a cat, for his body stiffens."

Two things account for "Scyros'" unflinching steps at every corner. First, there's the step off the curb. Second, he doesn't know which way to turn at the corner.

He knows three directions commands: left, right and forward. Until Miss Adams has judged the direction of the traffic and gives her order, "Scyros" never moves.

If she should mistakenly order him into moving traffic, "Scyros" just leans his head against her left leg—he always walks on her left—and she knows she's made an error.

Watches Traffic "Sometimes when we're in the middle of the street and the light changes, he sees the traffic moving toward us and he'll lead me back to the curb. Then we start all over."

"Scyros" loves ice cream and he's not immune to flattery. As he leads his mistress around town, she always knows when they're passing a place where they've had ice cream or he's been petted.

"He always turns his head toward the doorways of the places we've visited as much as to say 'Don't you want to go in?'"

GERMAN RULER PLACES BLAME ON NORWEGIANS

"Created State of War" By Offering Resistance To Reich

GIVES AUTHORITY TO SECRET POLICE

"Legalizes" Government Of Areas Occupied by Nazi Forces

(By Associated Press) BERLIN, April 27.—Adolf Hitler in a sweeping proclamation today ended the twilight diplomatic status of the German invasion of Norway by declaring that a state of war exists between the Reich and the kingdom of Haakon VII.

Prior to Hitler's surprise move, shrouded in secrecy like many other of his acts, Germany had held the invasion starting April 9 was to "protect" Norway from a similar step which the Germans accused the allies of planning.

Resisted Germany

Today the fuhrer declared that the Norwegian government itself had "created a state of war" by resisting Germany.

Only yesterday the foreign press had been told that no state of war existed.

A decree legalizing the appointment of Josef Terboven as governor of occupied areas in Norway revealed Germany's position.

The decree invoked authority of the German police in Norway, a proviso which seemed especially significant since it opened the way for Heinrich Himmler's famed secret police, which were effective in quelling civilian opposition in Poland.

Hitler attempted to put blame for the war on Premier Johan Nysgaardsvold's government, saying that by its acts, conduct and orders for military resistance it had "created a state of war between Norway and the German Reich."

Another clause gave the German military and civil commands the right to abrogate Norwegian law whenever they deem it necessary.

Keeps Power Himself

Hitler was careful, however, to retain for himself all fundamental decisions regarding Norway. Terboven and the German commander-in-chief in Norway, General Nikolaus Von Falkenhorst, must operate along guiding lines laid down by the fuhrer or two of his appointees.

Dr. Hans Lammers, the secretary of the chancellery, and Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command.

The Norwegian administrative council, formed in Oslo after the invasion with Ingolf Christensen as head, was left in the position merely to carry out orders from Terboven and Von Falkenhorst.

A Norwegian proclamation issued from secret headquarters declared the council was not representative of the legal Norwegian government and that no basis for negotiations with German as long as German troops remained in Norway.)

SCHOOL REPORT LISTS FINDINGS

$4,396.23 Still Due Various State Boards, State Audit Says

LISBON, April 27.—County Auditor Rosa Tisher today received a report of an examination of school accounts of the city and exempted village school districts of Columbiana county, as submitted by State Auditor Joseph Ferguson.

The examination, covering a period from July 20, 1937, until Nov. 30, 1939, was made by Lucille Hertzer, assistant state examiner, and revealed total findings of $5,396.25. Of this amount $1,002.02 has been paid, leaving a balance of $4,396.23 in findings due the various school districts in the cities and villages.

Two findings for recovery were returned against the C. E. Ward company of New London, jointly naming the school boards in each instance. The largest finding of $816.26 was returned against the Ward Co. and the board of education of East Liverpool, in favor of the East Liverpool City School district, for the rental of caps and gowns in 1938 and 1939. According to law the school board has no authority to use public funds to pay expenses of graduation, which are of a personal nature.

Hits Uniform Purchase

The other other finding against the Ward company, in favor of the Columbiana Village schools, was for $446.85. The finding jointly named members of the Columbiana board of education, for the purchase of band uniforms, the board having advanced the money for the same when "there is no statutory authority whereby a board of education may advance money for outside activities."

Another purchase of band uniforms also resulted in a finding in favor of the East Palestine City School district for $279.81. This was returned jointly against the Fredheimer Bros. Co., of Cincinnati, and the board of education, which voted payment of the purchase.

Of the approximate 75 findings returned by the report, the majority were for small sums illegally spent or for over payment. Another of the larger sums was a finding of $435 in favor of the East Liverpool City schools, against J. E. Armstrong, for rent of property, and a finding of $268.50 against Supt. C. B. Higley of Columbiana, in favor of the Columbiana schools, for over-payment of salary.

Offers "Proof" That British Planned Coup

Minister Von Ribbentrop Tells Diplomats, Foreign Press, High Officers, Germany Foiled Designs by "Few Hours"

BERLIN, April 27.—(AP By Radio)—Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop today charged that the Allies long had planned to invade Norway in an effort to widen the war "to destroy Germany" but German intervention foiled the design "by a few hours."

Documentary "proof" of his charge and the further allegation that Norway had resolved to take part, he announced, is being issued by the German government in a series of publications.

Through German operations in Norway, he said, "we found the entire plan of occupation of the allied army. These military orders prove without doubt that the landing of English troops in Norway had been planned for a very long time."

The foreign minister made his navy and air force charges in a half-hour address in the chancellery before the diplomatic corps, the foreign press, and high officers of the German army.

Speaking with deliberation he said that Britain had tried since the beginning of the year to create a new theater for the war. He reviewed the conflict from the outbreak of war on September 3 to the opening of the campaign in Norway the night of April 8-9.

The British laying of mines in Norwegian territorial waters, announced on April 8 as a measure to stop German use of the "covered way" of fjords and channels between islands, "in reality was to serve to protect the English expeditionary force which was already in the North sea at this time," he said.

Germany immediately started "a counter action," he asserted, preventing the English from landing—the German invasion of Norway—and her troops in their drives against the allies seized orders and other documents disclosing the Allied schemes.

The documents which he said Germany is offering to back her charges included "a large number of diaries of English officers."

Aid to Finland originally was to have been the pretext for widening the war to Scandinavia, he said, but this failed with the coming of peace. Also, he said, Sweden was resolved to maintain her neutrality.

The statement was broadcast in a great radio hookup, including the United States.

Of "Special Importance" To Neutrals

Great pomp and ceremony was evident in the occasion. Before starting to speak Von Ribbentrop enumerated the ambassadors and representatives of other nations who were present. He also noted how many high German officials and army and naval officers were around him.

"You have been asked to come here," he said, "so that may make accessible a number of diplomatic documents. It will be of especial importance to the neutral countries."

"On Sept. 3 England and France declared war against Germany without any reasonable arguments. Ever since January, 1933, Germany has shown its good will toward England and France. While the Allies try to destroy Germany they will be fought with all our power."

"After realizing that an attack on the west wall would be impossible and after Poland had failed they tried to find some other means to destroy Germany."

"Since the beginning of this year England and France have tried with all their means to bring about a new scene for the war. England is trying to spare its own blood, according to its old custom. They have started a systematic campaign against the principle of neutrality."

MUSIC WEEK SIGNIFICANCE

This year, as in few years past, the observance of National Music week embodies special significance to the American people. From Sunday, May 5, to May 12, people of the United States will place special emphasis on cultural attainment while the unfortunate people of many foreign nations will hear, as they have for months, only the fortissimo of war.

Salem musicians and others who, though not active participants in musical circles, find considerable pleasure in music, will contribute their share to the national observance. Special programs are now being arranged, the first of which will be presented Sunday afternoon, May 5, in the Methodist church.

This city for the last few years has been known for its fine musical organizations, and the contributions of individual musicians. There has been a noteworthy advancement in this respect. The work of the schools and the efforts of individual music lovers, and clubs, both senior and junior, have produced results of which the community can well be proud.

It is encouraging to observe that this work has been done largely with little thought of material gain. It is refreshing to note how club leaders, teachers and the older musicians have given time and talent to promoting interest and development among young people; and heartening to observe the response.

All of this constitutes a community service of highest merit and as such is deserving of community recognition through co-operation with Music week activities.

SEDATIVES FOR A NERVOUS ATTACK

Increasing tempo of European events is beginning to have effect on the American nervous system. Long faces and furrowed brows are more frequent. Behind them is growing alarm over the possibility of Germany gaining a sudden and climactic advantage in the war. If it happened, a war party automatically would rise in the United States. Americans may not want to join the Allies, but it is likewise true that they don't want the Allies to lose.

Sedatives for the current nervous attack might be prescribed as follows:

First, the belligerent power taking the initiative inevitably appears to hold the advantage; Germany has taken the initiative on the military and diplomatic fronts.

The Scandinavian project, important in itself at the moment, will be measured in the long run by its practicability in relation to the war as a whole. Because Germany took the initiative and is holding it does not signify that occupation of territory in the north will be worth the effort.

Third, the strength of totalitarianism is compactness of planning and execution. This also is the system's ultimate weakness. Germany at the outset of the active phase of the war is better organized than the opposition. But it remains to be seen how well totalitarianism can withstand strain.

Fourth, last, and most important: The war has just begun.

OSTRICHITIS

Signs multiply that the United States has been still suffering from acute ostrichitis. Latest is the consternation caused by an admiral's opinion that developments in the orient will involve the United States in war with Japan, if this government doesn't take steps to avert war.

The steps are, of course, more ships, more bases, more everything. The admiral was expressing his opinion before the senate naval affairs committee. But that is beside the point. The point is that the United States shrinks from facing the disagreeable fact that international security has disappeared from the face of the earth and that this country has no reason to think it can evade the consequences by refusing to think coldly about the possibilities.

There is danger of overestimating them, and that needs to be admitted, too. Nothing but disillusionment is in store for those who persist in dreaming that the United States won't be affected by the redistribution of territory being undertaken by aggressive powers. To the extent that the dream continues it plays into the hands of the warrior nations, who already have used it to seize Manchuria, Ethiopia, Austria, Albania, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Finland, Denmark and Norway.

SUSPENSE VS. SUSPENSE

Cagiest political play of the week, on the face of it, is Mr. Roosevelt's decision to move out of Washington when Republicans move into Philadelphia for their national convention the last week in June.

The apparent strategy is to keep the Republican convention from blanketing the President as a focus of political interest. When the chief executive goes on tour—swings around the circle—he has a chance to make numerous speeches. Because it is reasonably certain by now that Mr. Roosevelt's third term decision still will be pending at the time, there will be a climax of suspense.

From a seat in the gallery, however, it seems as though the balance of suspense—and interest—still would favor Philadelphia. If Mr. Roosevelt hasn't announced his decision by the time of the Republican convention, he won't be expected to announce it till the Democratic convention, which convenes in Chicago July 15. Those who suspect Mr. Roosevelt of trying to hold the spotlight by his June tour may find, instead, that to their surprise (and perhaps his) he is little more than a noise offstage.

When it came to sending diplomatic notes, Woodrow Wilson was prolific enough for his times, but these days he would be just a piker.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of peculiar, subtle or novel adventures, with the forces and faculties turned in the direction of the intriguing, fantastic, curious and intangible.

A child born on this day may have many singular, subtle and unfathomable traits of character, which, if directed and trained into creative channels, might excel in unusual intellectual or cultural expression.

For Monday, April 29

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a rather adverse one, with omens of difficulties and frustrations in both business and private affairs. It may be hard to make much headway, as obstacles and afflictions menace Elders and superiors oppose; social relations may be strained and depressing. Postpone where possible.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of difficulties, delays and depressions, in business as well as social or domestic relations. There are signs of opposition from elders and superiors, and the physical condition may figure as a factor in frustration. A child born on this day may be slow, introspective, subtle and profound, not easily understood and valued by its elders and superiors.

Teamwork Called Essential In Battle Against Cancer

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE American society in charge of the campaign for Cancer Control Month, which has been provided by Congress for April of this year, has called attention to three necessary divisions of our activities in the fight on this disease. In previous articles this month I have stressed the importance of education of the public as one of these methods of attack, and of research in cancer as another.

The third form of attack is the application of known methods of treatment. If the educated public will take advantage of the methods of attack, it will be a great help.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

ods discovered by research in the past, most cases can now be cured. It need be no longer the dread disease which in popular estimation it once was.

Group Study
As our knowledge of cancer has increased, it has become clear that in many cases the most successful handling of the patient comes only after one or more conferences between surgeons, radiologists, pathologists, internists and other specialists.

The need of microscopic study of tumor tissue and the growing frequency of combined use of x-rays and surgery, or for choosing wisely between them, form the main reasons why such group activity is an all-important development in the fight against cancer.

Modern Approach
In its early stages cancer is usually confined to a small area. This fact accounts for the success of treatment at such stages.

The modern approach to a small suspicious area would be as follows:

It might be a lump or an ulceration of the skin, or a rough spot on the skin. If small, the surgeon can remove it. He hands this piece of tissue to his colleague, the pathologist, who makes a section of it with a razor-blade cutting machine (microtome), stains the thin tissue and puts it under the microscope. This man—the pathologist—determines what type of cancer tissue it is; and whether the surgeon has removed the entire growth. He then consults the surgeon and the x-ray man to determine whether in the light of the nature of the growth it should be submitted to x-ray or possibly to further surgery. If it is on the skin, the specialist on skin is called in; if in the female organs, the gynecologist; and their advice is taken on the basis of their wide and special experience.

Follow-Up Work
Particularly important is that some physician in the group should undertake the follow-up work. He should examine the patient at least once every three months for the first year after the initial treatment, and once every six months for five or six years. If any dangerous symptom arises and further treatment may be necessary, the original treatment is repeated, at least in principle. This teamwork or group-attack is the key to the modern, successful treatment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. K. M.: "If a young father dies from brain tumor, can his children or grandchildren inherit it, or any mental disorder from him?"

Answer—These fears are unnecessary. The hereditary nature of any tumor is too doubtful to be used as a basis for prognosis, and human heredity is so mixed that the good strain of inheritance from the mother and other relatives usually outweighs the single strain that might come from the father's side.

K. O.: "Is there any cure for a terrible itching that follows varicose veins?"
Answer—The skin is usually affected along the course of a varicose vein and often the first symptom is intense itching. Relief of the varicosity will relieve the itching.

"Salute to Banks"

Banks are as necessary to our society as life insurance. Their function is not the same. Banks deal in savings, life insurance companies sell you protection.

We congratulate Mr. Colley and Mr. Hart of our local banks for their belief in life insurance and for their recommendation thereof.

You can save money by payment of your insurance premium on an annual basis. If you are paying premiums monthly, quarterly or semi-annually, why not ask your banker about a savings plan, which will enable you to save money for payment of premiums on an economical basis?

The CAIRO GARTER MURDERS

By VAN DYCK
MASON

The newcomer swung about, right hand plunged into his coat front "Why, if it ain't the Limey!" Melhorne greeted Kilgour. . .

room and flicked on the light switch. "What do you want?" Kilgour challenged. The newcomer swung about, right hand plunged into his coat front. Poised, he faced the vigilant figure to his left. "Say, what the—? Why, if it ain't the Limey. Say, is Dick corked off?" "He's not to be disturbed," Kilgour evaded and, relaxing, offered his cigarette case. "It was now North's turn to be astonished. Kilgour was quite affable. "Well, Colonel Melhorne, what might you be doing here?" "Dropped in for a nightcap with Dick," the other replied. "Might ask you the same question, so long as we're asking questions." "For the same reason, Follonsbee's gone to bed tonight." "Yeah? Must have been soused as a Billy goat to wreck his suite like this?" A slow and mocking smile spread over the caller's thin scar of a mouth. From what he could see through his narrow door crack, North thought the soldier of fortune little changed during the past two years. His features still retained their devil-may-care good nature. An old powder burn glowed blue along the intruder's left cheek. Long ago North had decided that said burn had been caused by the charge of a shot which had nicked off the top of Sag Melhorne's left ear. All in all, the soldier of fortune in his not bad-fitting evening clothes presented at once a sinister and a romantic figure. With a sudden flash of anger, Stag asked, "Who's that behind the door?" "A lady, Colonel. She—er—dropped in with me. When we found Follonsbee sleeping we—er—just lingered to talk—er—don't you know?" "2-SAT STORY In faint contempt Melhorne's scared face tightened. "Yeah? Try another gas, Kilgour, and quit stalling. I can smell raw blood all over the place. Who is in there?" He started forward, but the British agent blocked his path. "I advise you to stay where you are." North grew apprehensive as he sensed the swift growth of antagonism. "Yeah? Well, listen, Limey. I go where I please and do what I please, get me?" "Stay where you are, or you won't like the consequences a little bit. I don't advise you to try bluster in British territory," Kilgour advised in succinct accents. "And this vessel is British. Don't forget it." The heavier figure fell back a step. "You talk like a dick, so I

Father Gets Murder Child

It's a happy reunion in Los Angeles court between Chloe Davis, 11, and her father, Barton Davis, after a court had decided that the child, figure in a mass murder case involving the Davis family, be put in the father's custody but still remain a ward of juvenile court. Chloe gained national attention when her mother and three brothers and sister were found dead in the Davis home. Police exonerated the child in the deaths, believing the mother killed the children before committing suicide.

NAPOLEON BOOK CAJUNS' CHOICE

Louisiana Swamp Dwellers Like to Read of French Idol

NEW ORLEANS—Cajun dwellers of the Louisiana swamp country and hillbilly farmers from upstate travel by pirogue and muleback, but they usually ask for the same book when they meet the "bookmobile." It's "The Life of Napoleon." Miss Sarah Irwin Jones is supervisor of the Work Projects Administration project that maintains the bookmobile system of traveling libraries under sponsorship of the Louisiana Library commission, and she details work of the "Parnassus on Wheels" in her annual report. Bayou residents come swinging down the channels in their slim dugout pirogues, eager to meet the traveling library and get a fresh supply of literature. Past Meets Present In the northern hills, a man on a mule rides out of a side road to ask for some of the latest magazines, or maybe his wife's told him to get some styles and patterns. "They are persons who, until fairly recently, had no books to read," she added in describing the rural dwellers now reached by the five bookmobiles in use. "Set up in trucks or trailers, these libraries trundle from one end of the state to the other. They make scheduled stops at crossroads and bayou landings the whole year around. The custom is to borrow books and magazines, and return them the next time the rolling library comes by. Service Started In 1933 In her report, Miss Jones told of experiences encountered when the first bookmobile went to Terrebonne Parish in 1933. The Terrebonne is the large coastal area of extreme southern Louisiana. "We were delighted to have such inquiries as the one which came from a deaf carpenter in the Black Bayou sections," she wrote. "He sought 'The Life of Napoleon,' a book on Pasteur and 'Anthony Adverse.' He told the bookmobile attendant that, until coming of the touring library, he had read only newspapers since quitting school, while in the seventh grade. "It is in this parish that the bookmobile halts at the edge of bayous, waiting for pirogue travelers to paddle from the shore opposite or out from the swamps."

Cancer 'Find' Is Reported

Sex Hormones Traced In Latest Investigation Of Dread Disease

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor WORCESTER, Mass.—The opening of a new line of cancer investigation was reported today from Clark university. This is based on discovery of a difference in the amount of sex hormones normally excreted by women with, and without cancer. Fewer of these hormones come from the women who are free from the malignant growths. The discovery has one curious aspect. In animals excess amounts of sex hormones are known to cause cancer, and although similar effects have not been found in human beings, there has been a medical impression that too many sex hormones might be a cause of human cancer. At first glance, the fact that women with the malignant growths are losing many more sex hormones than their normal sisters might seem to show that they retain fewer of these hormones and that the malignancies develop in a scarcity of the hormones. But the Clark university experimenters suggest a different answer. This is that the women with malignancies metabolize sex hormones in a manner different from those free from cancer. The experimenters have injected large amounts of sex hormones in women with cancer, and found that this fails to increase appreciably the excretion of the hormone. Normally such injection results in a noticeable increase. The conclusion is that this is evidence that cancers make use of sex hormones in some unusual and as yet not clearly understood manner. The excess hormones which fail to appear after the injections, may escape recognition because they have changed their chemical form into abnormal substances capable of carrying cancer. This change would be a possible clue to the cause of cancer and search for evidences of it are under way at Clark. The report was made in the journal, Endocrinology, by Gregory Pincus and Mark Graubard of the university's physiological laboratories.

Dreams Come True

Miss Emily

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF THIS June means Mendelssohn to you, now's the time to look into your wedding gown. Expect to find lots of white this summer... the vogue for pastel bridal gowns seems to have calmed down. Traditional satin may be your choice, especially if there's a bit of precious lace in the family. If not, there's starched chiffon, marquisette, net, mousseline, dotted Swiss and embroidered organdy to consider.

The last-named material is that used for the gown sketched today, the only contrast being a plain organdy yoke. Simple yet ethereal for the ceremony, this dress with its three-yard train is also practical. Snip the train and you have an evening dress instead of an heirloom, with a veil to be put away for sentiment's sake.

Dainty fluting outlines the V of the bodice of the gown in front and continues in a curve across the back. Buttons down the back are self-covered and extend to a natural, fitted waistline. A taffeta slip accompanies the dress, not too expensive for the promises you'll make on the day of days.

The bride in organdy might have her bridesmaids in flowered organdie of different colors. If she selects pique, her attendants could wear the same material, but each girl's frock of a different style. The bride who breaks from the traditional and takes her vows in baby blue tulle can't do better than put her maids in the same shade in dresses of taffeta, organdy or crepe.

In the most modest homes we often find the family ties stronger than in great mansions. Surely it is true that those who have lived simply and humbly wish for their loved ones the finest service love can provide, even though the dollars be few indeed.

I'm proud of the fact so many funeral directors, like the principals of the Stark Memorial, enter the tiniest cottage with the same spirit of reverence, with the same desire to be comforting and helpful, which possesses them when they cross the thresholds of those having unlimited means.

Baptist Minister Continues Series Of Talks Sunday

A series of sermons on the general theme "Spiritual Gardening with God" will be continued at the First Baptist church tomorrow with Rev. S. T. Magann, pastor, preaching on the subject "Spiritual Gardening."

The sermon will deal with some of the vital factors in spiritual development, showing how some persons become disillusioned in religious experience when they ignore them.

The Sunday evening sermon, "For Sincere Doubters," will discuss religious doubts, which, under some conditions, may be very distressing and disturbing. It will point to the way whereby doubts may become the incentive for a patient inquiry that leads the way to eternal truth. Colton said, "Doubt is the vestibule which all must pass before they can enter the temple of wisdom." The Bible gives much light on how one may intelligently deal with sincere doubts.

10-TEAM CLASS A SOFTBALL LOOP IN PROSPECT

Lake Placencia Expected To Place Stronger Team On Field For '40 Season

Managers Encouraged By Showing of Several New Players; Workouts Scheduled For Tomorrow And Tuesday At Lake

Encouraged by the showing of several new players, Co-Managers Joe Schwartzhoff and Sam Drakulich of the Lake Placencia semi-pro baseball team are anxiously looking ahead to the start of their 1940 season.

The Lakers are expected to open their 1940 campaign Sunday, May 12; will play every Sunday during the season on their home diamond, weather permitting. Games with outstanding teams of the tri-state area are now being scheduled.

Practice for the Placencia squad opened last Wednesday with a promising group of candidates participating in the first drill. A second workout is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. tomorrow, while a third practice session will be held next Tuesday.

The squad will be cut to 12 players Sunday, May 5, when new uniforms will be issued.

Stronger Team Seen
New talent acquired by the team is expected to make the Lakers stronger this season than they have been for several years.

Among the newcomers is Carl Hannan, southpaw pitcher from Louisville, who was a member of a Class D team in a Kentucky league last year. Hannan won 15 straight games for the Kentucky team before a sore arm placed him on the injured list.

Hannan will probably be the ace of the Placencia pitching staff with the veteran Willis Schopfer and Orrie Snyder in reserve. Both Schopfer and Snyder looked good in the opening workout.

The catching assignment is expected to go to either Kasparab of Alliance or Bus Simpson of Lisbon. Larry Russell of Alliance is expected to hold down first base with Joe Schwartzhoff at second and Ralph Fox at third. McVey and Rodi of Alliance are battling for the shortstop position.

Outfield Intact
Last year's outfield of Ted Schwartzhoff, Ray Miller and Bill Close is back, but these veterans are expected to have a fight for their positions.

Paul Stratton of Salem threatens to take over Russell's first base job or possibly an outfield spot. Al Cates of Salem and Don Hoffman are other candidates who showed up well in the first practice. Drakulich, who was injured during basketball season, will help Joe Schwartzhoff manage the team until he is able to play, probably not until July according to his physicians orders.

DODGERS ARE NO LONGER "DAFFY"

Brooklyn turns Over New Leaf; Leads National League

BY BILL WHITE
The frantic antics of Brooklyn's daffiness boys apparently have vanished from the baseball scene and the Dodgers, darn em, have turned respectable.

That seems unfair. Visions of pitchers winding up while men were on base, of three Dodgers all trying to occupy the same base, or of outfielders catching fly balls with their heads used to be an integral part of the game. But the Dodgers are no longer daffy—they're downright dangerous.

How else would you explain Brooklyn being the only undefeated team in the majors, with six straight victories, climaxed by yesterday's 6-0 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies?

Pressing the Dodgers for top honors in the senior circuit are their hated inter-borough rivals, the Terriers Giants, and the rejuvenated Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers collide with the Giants today.

Fourth In Row
The Giants won their fourth in a row, 5-3 over the hapless Boston Bees yesterday as Pinch Hitter Joe Moore doubled to send in the winning two runs. The Pirates, behind Mace Brown's 10-hit hurling, slaughtered the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-4.

The Cincinnati Reds, defending league champions, were shocked by a 6-2 setback at the hands of the Chicago Cubs, whose Claude Passeau limited them to five hits while Billy Nicholson went on a batting spree, getting a homer, double and

QUAKER TRACK SQUAD SCORES THIRD VICTORY

Remains Undefeated By Topping Louisville In Dual Meet

Remaining unbeaten in minor competition, Coach Fred Cope's Salem High school track and field team swamped Louisville High school athletes, 70-2-3 to 47-1-3, in a dual meet at Louisville yesterday.

The Quakers will receive their first major test one week from today when they compete in the 11th annual Salem Night Relays.

Despite the absence of Glenn Whinnery, their leading 440 runner, the Quakers captured as many firsts against Louisville as they have in any meet this season.

The Salem athletes won eight events and tied for first in another as they chalked up their third straight victory.

Hansell Wins Sprints
Elliott Hansell paced the Quakers to the top-sided victory, winning the sprint events, Hansell raced to victory in the 100-yard dash in 16.2 seconds and sprinted the 220 in 24 seconds.

Other firsts were gained for the Quakers by Jim Shafer in the 120-yard high hurdles, Dick Beck in the shot put, Eugene Myers in the discus, Tom Rhodes and Bob Shoe in the pole vault, Don Shannon in the 880-yard run, and the mile relay team of Hrovatic, Shoe, Martin and O'Connell. Ernest Turner tied for first in the high jump.

Whinnery was kept from competing in the meet by a throat infection.

Markings posted by Salem athletes in the 14 events were generally better than they have been in any other meet this season. Rhodes failed to clear his usual height in the pole vault, and Hansell was slower than usual in the 220, but other marks were fairly good. Turner and Bruce Krepps both bettered 19 feet in the broad jump, but lost the event to Quilter of Louisville who was the individual star of the meet.

Star Milers Run In Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—Headlined by a special mile race matching three of the nation's outstanding performers, the 46th annual Penn relay carnival reaches its climax today.

The meet record for the special mile appeared to be the only major event mark threatened. Chuck Fenske, Gene Venzke and Walter Mehl, the three rivals, might collaborate to better the 4:11.8 time set by Glenn Cunningham in 1934.

Two runners and two relay teams on the Ohio placed yesterday. Gil Dawds, Ashland, captured second in the finals of the two-mile run. Jack Sulzman, Ohio State, qualified, but failed to place in the 400-meter hurdles.

BOWLING RESULTS

The fast-moving Electric Furnace, already assured of the American league championship, stretched their lead over the secondplace Fernengel Colts from 12 1/2 to 15 1/2 games at the Masonic temple alleys last night.

The Furnace tacked three games onto its lead by making a clean sweep of its match with the Demos while Fernengel's dropped three games to the Ohio Edison.

Charlie Wernet and Howard Heston paced the Furnace to its three wins, Wernet hitting 627 and Heston 622.

Fitzpatrick Super Service retained third place in the league standings by winning two out of three games with Demings.

The leading Endres-Gross ladies continued to set the pace in the Grate Ladies' league, winning two of three games with Jean Frocks at the Grate Recreation alleys.

Other ladies matches at the Sunnyside Shoppe take two games from Kaufman's, Grate Recreation win two games over the Unknowns, Finney's Beauty Shoppe take two games from the Church Budget and Brownie's Service gain three wins on a forfeit by the Sinclairs.

RIVER RECEDING FROM REDS' PARK

Cincinnati Club Returns Home, May Get Game In Today

CINCINNATI, April 27.—With steady steps and heavy hearts, the Cincinnati Reds came home from a brief but highly unsatisfactory road trip today to see if their ball park was fit for its accustomed use.

The Ohio river, which chased two games out of the park Tuesday and Wednesday, was receding slowly from the crest that covered even the pitcher's mound and Groundskeeper Matty Schwab kept his fire hose siphons going all night to speed the parting guest.

General Manager Warren C. Giles promised to make up his mind at 10 a.m. whether today's game with the Pittsburgh Pirates could be played.

Bucky Walters, whose famous sinker ball would have sunk "full 40 fathom deep" had he tried to pitch as scheduled Tuesday, and either Max Butcher or Johnny Lanning are the hurlers of the day.

Beggs Looks Good
About the only thing Manager Bill McKelchne could be happy over as a result of the brief jaunt to Chicago was the knowledge that Joe Beggs was a good swap for the departed Lee Grissom. Joe, who came over from the New York Yankees' Newark farm, pitched about eight fine innings of baseball yesterday. The only trouble was he didn't start the game.

Gene Thompson did what, with three walks, a single and Bill Nicholson's home run, with the bases loaded, five runs were in and no man was out. Joe took up the run and allowed only one more run until Johnny Ruttings relieved him in the ninth.

Meanwhile Claude Passeau gave the Reds little to work on and the final score was 6 to 2.

It evened the Reds and Cubs up on the season so far, with two games apiece. The game was the first in which relief pitchers had to be used by the Reds and McKelchne was glad to know he had a couple

QUAKER TENNIS COACH EMPLOYS NOVEL SYSTEM

26 Players Bidding For Places On Salem High Team

A new plan for selecting members of Salem High school's tennis team for forthcoming matches is being used by Coach Loren D. Early as he prepares the Quaker racquet wielders for their opening test against Sebring May 8.

With Capt. Lee Willman as the only letterman available for service this season, Coach Early plans to select other members of the team by using a system which rewards players who continue to show their superiority as the season progresses.

The names of 26 candidates for the five-man team have been placed on a challenge list in ladder style. Any player may challenge either of the two players above him on the list. If the challenging player wins the match, his name moves up on the list.

The team for each of the Quakers' matches will be composed of the five players at the top of the ladder at that time.

Coach Early reports that practice for his squad has been handicapped by lack of courts suitable for use in the spring, but hopes that by next year the Centennial park courts will be hard-surfaced so they can be used for early matches.

A schedule of eight matches, opening Wednesday May 8 and closing Wednesday May 29, has been arranged. The schedule follows: May 8, at Sebring; May 10, at Lisbon; May 15, at Alliance; May 17, at S. Ruthers; May 20, Sebring, here; May 24, Alliance, here; May 27, Sebring, here; May 29, Struthers, here.

Candidates for the team, in addition to Capt. Willman are: Carl Capel, Walter Bolinger, Robert Ritchie, George Baillie, Wayne Laughlin, Ed Za'ko, Val Moga, William Fineran, Gail Stewart, Sam Fridon, Don Rice, Bob Neale, Alex Simion, Ray Lober, Bob Biehsel, Bob Brudery, Phil Huray, Bill Haesly, Warren Tullis, Virgil Neiderhiser, Ray Atkinson, Leonard Robbins, Deuber Miller, Harold Watoner and Harold Borton.

The first newspaper in the new world was the Boston News Letter, published in 1704. Like the first banks, it was a home enterprise. From such beginnings have grown the up-to-the-minute newspapers of the present day, as well as our modern banking system. This bank does not go back to the days of the Boston News Letter, yet its long years of service have firmly established its place an importance in this community.

STUDY TO EASE FARM POVERTY

FSA Head Says Nearly Half of Families Are Ill Fed

WASHINGTON—A government inter-departmental committee is searching for a solution to the many economic ills that have forced thousands of southern farm families to near-starvation.

The unofficial committee is composed of representatives of the Agriculture, Labor, Public Works departments and the Federal Security Agency. State governments have been asked to assist in a survey of the situation.

Dr. W. W. Alexander, Farm Security Administrator, whose many years as a Southern minister and social worker have given him an intimate knowledge of the South, declared that "much of the South is close to starvation."

Income Inadequate for Food
Alexander said 40 per cent of all Southern families have an average of $236 to spend for feeding their families for a full year. That includes, he said, the value of all foodstuffs they grow for themselves.

"You don't need much proof to know that you can't feed a family properly for a year on $236," he said. "Possibly that is not starvation in the ordinary sense of the word, but it's close enough to it to be dangerous."

Foremost of the South's problems is over-population, Alexander said. Eastern and northern factories that formerly took the South's surplus labor no longer offer employment opportunities.

Farm machinery has reduced the demand for farm labor. "There are fewer acres under cultivation in the South today than there were in 1860," Alexander said. "That land is far less productive. And yet there are twice as many families trying to squeeze out a living on these acres as there were in 1860."

Extreme Poverty Prevails
There are simply too many people trying to live off the South's soil and out of the income of Southern agriculture, he said. "The result is extreme poverty for perhaps half the Southern farm population," he said.

Birth rates in the rural South are the highest in the nation. With factory outlets closed, the Southern farm population is estimated to have increased by approximately 1,000,000 since 1930. Without migration, it will increase another 8,000,000 by 1950, Alexander estimated.

The necessity for migration—already has forced more than 500,000 families from their homes to the North. The search for farm labor, principally to California and Florida, FSA officials estimated.

Alexander suggested a five-point program as a start on rehabilitation of the South:

1. Expansion of the rehabilitation program for making families secure on the land.
2. Government aid in increasing farm ownership.
3. Reform the tenancy system to encourage stability on the land.
4. A combination subsistence and conservation works program.
5. Establishment of educational institutions for training of skilled personnel for leadership in solving the South's problem.

HACIENDA UNIT MAY MARK ERA

Chamber of Commerce Is Planning To Develop Monterey, Cal.

MONTEREY, Calif.—As a major plank in a program to establish Monterey as the finest example of early California architecture, the Junior Chamber of Commerce is seeking civic support for proposed construction of a "hacienda" group to be built here in authentic style of the Don era.

Long has it been the effort of Monterey citizens to preserve their heritage of original buildings dating from the period when the city was California's first capital. Stringent local ordinances protect historic structures.

The new hacienda group, according to plans, will not only be typical in architecture, but in so far as practical will be built from materials identical with those used by early Spanish settlers. All walls would be of adobe brick; tile for roofing would be made on the spot; hand-hewn redwood and pine for rafters, beams and joists, and flooring would be whipsawed of local material or made of tile baked on the project.

Actual buildings composing the group are to consist of the main structure and all complementing outbuildings, which made the hacienda a self-sufficient living unit. These outbuildings would include a cooking shed, a dairy, a smokehouse and others, depending on available funds.

Plans for the project also include
